New Blog Post: A CRM system can be your most valuable hire

It's been a while, but we are back with a new article written by our very own CEO, Steven Wang. Check out this latest article on our blog about the most valuable hire for your system, which is a solid and powerful CRM.

It emphasizes that a robust Customer Relationship Management (CRM) system can be a business's most valuable "hire." Beyond managing sales, a well-implemented CRM can streamline operations by automating tasks, organizing workflows, and enhancing employee productivity.

From managing sales teams and tracking metrics to automating billing and coordinating installations, a CRM system can handle various tasks traditionally done by multiple employees, making it a crucial asset for business efficiency. Read the new blog post today!

MeasureSquare Feature Review: Cloud⟩ Revision

MeasureSquare constantly improves features to ensure customers get the best experience, like the Cloud⟩Revision feature in MeasureSquare Commercial 8 Edition. Every time you upload a project to the cloud, it will save a revision of the project.

So if you have a project in the cloud you uploaded and worked on it multiple times, say three, it will be uploaded each time. The cloud saves a version of each upload or sync. You can revert to a previous version if needed. This makes updates and changes quick and efficient when you send them directly to the cloud.

It also works for both iPad and Windows software, meaning our mobile software also benefits. Try this feature on your next project in the cloud today.
